Bio

Rob grew up in the Midwest, but moved to South Carolina in 2008 when he took a job with Blackbaud, where he continues to work today. He lives in Mount Pleasant with his wife and two children, who attend Cario Middle School and Wando High School. He has undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Michigan and remains a zealous fan of the Michigan Wolverines football team. He enjoys cooking, jogging, and watching monster movies, both old and new. He doesn't always enjoy writing, but he tries to keep doing it anyway.

He's always enjoyed writing and telling stories, but first decided to take a crack at novel writing back in 2014, when he tried his hand at the NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month) challenge. He didn't succeed at the challenge, but he liked the story he had started, so he kept at it and released it in 2016 as the young adult sci-fi adventure A Long, Long Trip on the Hope/Freedom. If you were at YALLFest in 2016, you may have seen him handing out bookmarks to promote his book.
